Reflections

On The Lake

Mrs. Carey is able to tell the time of the year by orders sent to the kitchen by customers. Tax time was revealed in the change of diet from full meals to soup or coffee and sinkers. . . the three pumps around the shore of the lake are operating again, pumping water from under the lake, back into the lake. This could result in perpetual motion, unless the clay sealer now being sprinkled on the shore line and on the lake takes effect. . . G. W. Byrd takes considerable pleasure in showing customers his rare pictorial volume of the account of World War I. . . Jack Ramsey got a call last week to service a television set that "was out of commotion". . . the stream of water flowing north on Maine Avenue wasn't overflow from the lake, but a ruptured water pipe in the street outside Held's store. . . the Citizen's Advisory Committee report estimate Lakeside population growth in this school district will approximate 25,000 by 1961 and 50,000 to 75,000 by 1965, based on the consultation with realtors and businessmen. Our estimate by 1961 is 35,000 to 40,000 and by 1965 90,000. Judging by the development of boom conditions in other parts of the county. . . there is no excuse for local gentry not attending. Benefits by local organizations for the simple reason that they don't dance. Dancing classes are now held every Monday in Kiwanis hall for children and adults, from 1 P.M. to 5 P.M.

GOBBLERS, CACKELERS GALORE

Members of the Sportsmen's Club will hold a pistol shoot Sunday at Johnstown. At the last Turkey Shoot 15 turkeys and chickens were awarded as prizes. Turkey shoots are held on the first Sunday of each month.

PARTY AT GOODMAN HOME

Members of the TNT Club were entertained at the Goodman home last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Harvey Goodman and Mrs. Madge Holland were co-hostesses.

Lou Henderson, George Low, Lloyd Lewis, and Mrs. L. Lewis won the Pro-Amateur Tournament at the Lakeside golf course on April 16th, with pros from the different courses participating. The pros played with a full handicap.

Tied for second was Fred Sherman, Sid Lind, G. Cartwright, and Mrs. Doris Muller on one team and Lance Williamson, Gail Tomsom, Paul Heldbr and Mrs. Jane White.

The teams were made up of four players, the pro, amateur,

P.O. Stamp Book Ready

The official publication entitled "Postage Stamps of the United States," is now available. The new edition contains descriptions of all United States Postage Stamps from the date of their introduction in 1847 to December 31, 1955, the plate numbers and quantities printed on commemorative and air mail stamps, and a complete index for easy reference purposes.

Marines vs Beast AT June Show

CAMP PENDLETON — Although the big annual Navy Relief rodeo, the world's largest free rodeo, is still six weeks away, Camp Pendleton Marines and Sailors have been practicing since early February for the competitive events.

Forming a Rodeo Club on February 5, the camp's rodeo enthusiasts have been pointing toward top-notch performances from the marines and sailors turned cowboy on June 9 and 10.

The amateur cowboys meet every Sunday afternoon at the base rodeo grounds to let their skill against wily broncos and elusive calves. Three professional rodeo participants, Clyde Zahniser and Charles and William Combs, are on hand to give advice—and sympathy.

Club membership, open to any Camp Pendleton personnel who are interested in rodeo riding, include Woman Marine PFC Florence Panek.

Florence, who has ridden in rodeos in Harvey, Ill., and Valparaiso, Ind., competed in last year's rodeo here. She didn't win a trophy then, but figures with the extra practice the rodeo club is giving her, she's a cinch to show up some of the men this year.

Visit Your School For Information

Seventy thousand or more San Diegans are expected to provide an affirmative answer to that question by visiting one or more of the schools during the 37th annual observance of Public Schools Week, April 22 thru 29.

Each of the city's 95 public schools will maintain open house lar school week, Monday thru Friday. In addition, almost every school has scheduled an evening open house program during the week for the benefit of employed persons and all others who cannot visit during the daytime.

Public Schools Week, inaugurated in 1919 by the California Grand Lodge of Masons to bolster a school system crippled by World War I, stresses a statewide theme of "The Public School—An American Heritage."

Locally, the supplementary theme of "Have you met my teacher?" is being stressed by means of posters and other devices.

"The purpose of this theme is to stress the thought that greater understanding, support, achievement result in our public schools when pupils, teacher and parent all know each other and work in harmony," Dr. Dailard said.

Although visiting in the classrooms, during both daytime and evening open houses remains the first purpose of Public Schools Week, the school-community planning committees also has scheduled several special activities.

Dedication of George Washington Carver elementary school on Sunday, April 22, at 2:30 p. m. Dedication of this new school, located at 3251 Juanita St., in Redwood Village, is the first official event of Public Schools Week.

Dedication of the new Oliver Hazard elementary school at 6195 Ranger Road in Bayview Hills at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, April 24.

Research Catches Up With The Tomato

Americans almost daily are benefiting from the fruits of research carried on constantly by scientists all over the country. Above, you see Francis Noon (right), head fieldman for the Snider laboratories of General Foods at Albion, N. Y., holding a new variety of tomato developed by their scientists for making catsup and other tomato condiments, following six years of research. Looking on are Mrs. Theresa Krenzer and her son, Ted. Mrs. Krenzer, with her three sons and three daughters, farms 800 acres and grows 100 of them in tomatoes. This new variety resists cracking, has a superior color, and contains more edible solids. The plants of this variety will be made available to Mrs. Krenzer and other tomato farmers—another example of cooperation between grower and processor to provide better and better food products for the consumer.

Some People Never Die

WHEN GEORGE SCHMIDT, Minneapolis, received word that his father had died, he traveled home on an airplane. Looking down through the window he saw some houses through a hole in clouds, and noticed one particularly, a little white house, bathed in sunshine.

Then he thought of another white house in Jersey w used to visit. A little old Swedish lady lived in that house, and it was a place to go if you had any problems on your mind. The door always opened wide when you knocked and there was Mrs. Evander with a big smile on her face. She had a heart as big as the world, and she loved everyone. If she heard someone was sick, she would prepare some tasty dish. She sent flowers from her garden to all the shut-ins she knew about, and she had a smile and a cheerful word for everybody.

George remembered that when this little lady died a host of friends came to bid her farewell. He thought then that some people can never really die; they leave too much of themselves in this world; all the good, kind things become a part of everyone they have contacted, and though they may leave this world, they live on in the hearts of all who knew them.

Suddenly he felt very peaceful, because his father had been that kind of a man, a grand guy, who loved to laugh and to make other people laugh with him. He remembered his own happy childhood, and all the kind words and the understanding his father had given him. He knew he would never see his father alive again, but he knew, too, that he wasn't dead—he could never die. He left too much of himself with his son, and with all the people he had ever known.

Although sadness remained, the terrible despondency, the crushing grief was gone. He understood then how one may really achieve eternal life, and he found peace in that understanding.

LAW IN ACTION

TRUTH AND RELEVANCY

The tests of truth and relevancy which courts apply are stricter than those which we use in daily life. As a rule we don't put a man under oath. We don't cross-examine him if his story fails to hang together. We don't jail or fine him if he lies to us. But we do these things in court.

Why is that? Because we think each thing that takes place in a courtroom is important. Your property, your personal or civil rights—even your family's welfare or your life or liberty—may rest upon the truth of testimony in court.

Eager as courts are for facts, their tests fall short of those of science. When a scientist doubts the outcome of an experiment, he need not rely upon somebody else's word. He just repeats the experiment in question.

But not so in court. The acts told of in courts cannot be lived over again, for the court to see first hand. For example, you cannot bring back and ask a dead man whether he signed a will or whether the accused killed a man. We cannot re-do a murder; we can only get the witnesses to tell what they know first hand.

To protect each party, there are at least two safeguards: (1) we put the witness under oath on pain of penalties for lying; and (2) we cross-examine the witness.

Lawyers may seem always to be objecting to testimony. They have a duty to their clients and the court, to see that the judge and jury hear only what is true and relevant under the law.

If a lawyer protests, the judge may rule out some kinds of facts and tell the jury to ignore them. Sometimes too, some facts seriously break the rules of evidence. Then the judge declares a "mistrial" and orders a new trial.

He does this when the testimony is so unfair as to put the rights of the accused in danger. He does this also to protect the public.

New Jack Speeds Tire Changing

The most revolutionary change in the design of the automobile jack since the days of high pressure tires is featured as standard equipment on all 1956 Buicks. The jack is similar in design to those used in garages, featuring two bases instead of one, and can be operated with the foot. Jacking points have been marked on the frame to eliminate any doubt about where the new jack is to be placed.

Add Salmon To Macaroni And Cheese For A Delicious Casserole

A golden macaroni and cheese casserole studded with succulent flakes of salmon makes mighty good eating. Baked in individual casseroles, this hot and hearty combination makes a simple meal for the cook and gives each person his own dinner in-a-dish to enjoy.

Aside from its delicious flavor, Salmon Macaroni Casserole boasts the ease of preparation which you can always count on with convenient canned products, in this case salmon, soup and evaporated milk.

Canned salmon is one of nature's most healthful foods, since it gives you an abundance of vitamins and minerals as well as body-building protein. Ounce for ounce, it is one of your best protein buys, since the 6-ounce can of solid meat provides four generous servings.

Salmon Macaroni Casseroles

4 ounces elbow macaroni
1 can condensed cream of celery soup
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1 1-pound can salmon, drained and broken into pieces
1/4 cup finely cut pimiento
1 cup grated American cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions. Drain, but do not rinse; reserve. Combine celery soup and evaporated milk. Add macaroni, salmon, pimiento and 1/2 cup of the grated cheese. Turn into reared 1 1/2 quart casserole or individual casseroles; sprinkle remaining cheese around edge. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 25 minutes. YIELD: 4 servings.

CORRECT POSTURE FOR BETTER HEALTH

Postural defects in children result in physical and mental handicaps that should be corrected before they become chronic. Some 76% of all school children examined were found to have postural defects. Have your children checked regularly to determine any postural distortions. (note illustration)

Correct posture is not only a physical asset which constructively influences the health, but one that also enhances the appearance of young and old. It is a matter so vital to individual well-being and public welfare that the chiropractic profession of America years ago established Correct Posture Week, observed annually May 1 to 7, as a public health measure.

During this week everyone is urged to safeguard his natural birthright of a sound body by preventing the injurious distortions and cramping of bodily organs that follow faulty posture. The pain, irritation and fatigue that are the natural outgrowth of postural neglect, weaken the body's defense mechanism and make it an easier victim of disease.

Observe the indifferent slouch on the street or in the office. He looks half alive and obviously feels the same way. His cramped, distorted carriage has diminished the function of organs that produce and maintain health, and robbed muscle and tissue of the tone that proclaims health.

"Stand tall, sit tall, walk tall, and sleep tall," the slogan for building correct posture, is a challenge to the nation to achieve higher efficiency in work, greater physical endurance, improved health and function of the vital organs. During this week of May 1 to 7, free literature is distributed by the chiropractic profession through schools and other organizations.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"Do we know anyone who calls herself your mother—dear?"

Automation Begins at Home

Modern women are keeping up with their husbands on what's new these days. The breadwinner proudly comes home to tell about a new machine installed in his shop that practically thinks for itself. Automation, he calls it. His wife knows exactly what he is talking about because her new automatic washer does the same thing—practically thinks for itself.

For example, in the Whirlpool 1956 Imperial washer, the right water temperature is automatically provided for whites and cottons, prints and colors, or silks and nylons. Water level is selective and completely flexible. The correct washing time is selected by touch of a dial.

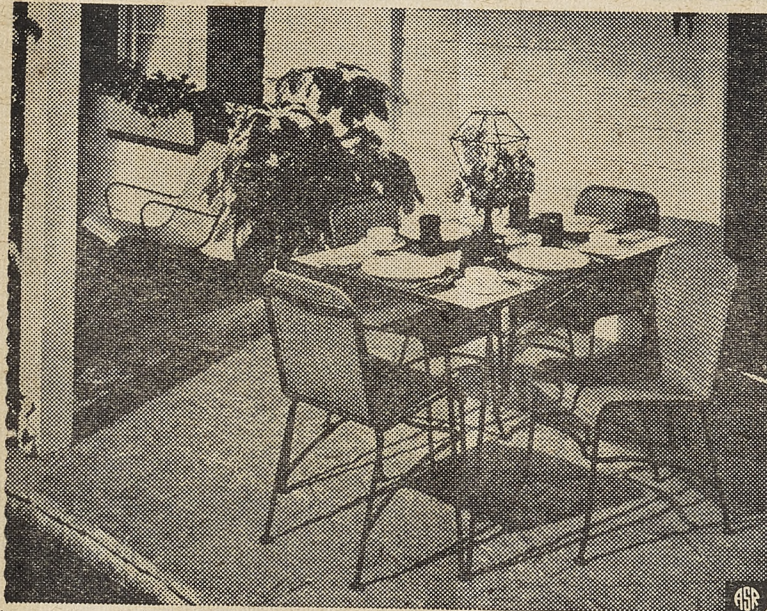

Modern synthetics receive special treatment by setting a Delicate Fabrics control for low-speed and short-time washing, rinsing and spinning. Even the sudsy water is saved for use in later wash loads if desired—automatically.

A companion clothes dryer (gas or electric) goes a step further in taking the hard work out of wash-day. The modern housewife simply sets a dial at HOT for rugs and woolens, MED. for whites and cottons, WARM for silks and nylons or DELICATE FABRICS for modern synthetics. Drying time is selective to 60 minutes. Clothes and linens may be removed "ironing dry" or ready to fold, stack and put away.

Automation in industry? American housewives have it right at home.

Furniture Fashions

The recipe for comfortable "al fresco" dining during the summer months should include a grouping such as the one shown. Light and cheerful, the table's plastic top and tubular metal frame will take a lot of abuse. The woven fibre of the seats and backs of the chairs are not harmed by driving rain or blistering sun.

Tables and chairs have self-leveling glides on the legs to compensate for the type of flooring found in terraces and patios.

Bright colors and smart designing give the right touch to modern outdoor living at moderate prices. You can furnish your outdoor living area as tastefully as the indoors.

This group includes occasional tables and lounge chairs. In good taste and extremely flexible, this furniture was designed to be used outdoors in the summer, and if you wish, in the recreation room during the winter months.

Handle With Care

Have you a baby in your home? What a joy... and what a problem, too! Of course, your particular problem is those diapers! There they are, and they've got to be done, because your chief aim is the baby's comfort. To make it easier for you, and to get the best results, here are a few rules to follow.

Scheduling is a must in caring for baby, and the diaper duty will fit right in, if you plan it as a daily chore. You'll find this best. Soiled diapers should be immediately dunked in the toilet bowl, holding them by one corner. Then, into a special soaking solution they go, in a 2-gallon enamel pail with a cover. Fill it half full of cold water and 2 tablespoons borax.

To wash them, use HOT water—the hotter the better. After wringing out the soaking solution, wash them in a good, sudsy water and add a half cup of bead-bluing, and a good water conditioner, if necessary. Putting the detergent-base bead-bluing right in the washing water is much better than the old fashioned way of putting it in the rinse water. There's no chance of over-bluing, and every bit of the soap and detergent is rinsed away. You'll find your washing machine your best friend for laundering baby's things. You need run the machine only 5 minutes if these instructions are followed.

After rinsing, shake them well and dry, then smooth and fold. Never iron. They'll be softer and more comfortable, and why work when you don't have to.

SUNDOWN ON THE PACIFIC SHORE

A novel about the Great West

BY RENAN PREVOST

Copyright by Renan Prevost, May 1955 All rights reserved

PREFACE

All thru the West there are Ghost Towns. Mostly in the region of the gold mines, of the wild, reckless days of 1849 and after. There are ruins of buildings and etc., which have a story, of the days, of glory and easy wealth for some men; and disappointment and tragic passing for other men.

About every city there are happenings of the past which are not always recorded; some men leave great names for their accomplishments, and land marks are named after them such as Parks, Streets and Schools. Also there are men, the workers who have "done the work" who are usually forgotten, with their passing on from this world. This story is about these men of great courage, supreme courage. Many of them arrived here without funds, and so gainful employment was necessary and that was work- hard work. Work not in line with their skill in a trade or profession.

Ghost towns have their story. So stories exist about buildings, water works, factories, railroads and other endeavors concerned with the earning of a livelihood. These stories become interesting, because they portray a life during the days of the past, almost forgotten. Great buildings or public utilities are usually known by the name of the man or corporation which caused the construction. Very seldom is any credit given to an architect, or the men who actually did the work. These were the men- "the brains" who were responsible for the erection of the structure or etc. And so this novel is about those "brains" and how they came West and what their life was like.

There are certain things effecting the economic welfare of men, which cause them to migrate. Generally it is promise of better living conditions or opportunities of easy attainment of wealth, thru land booms, new agricultural crops such as rare fruits, a better livable climate, as an aid to regain health, or as in the case of the colonization of this great country- an escape from persecution or oppression.

Men have been traveling to the West for generations, so we travel West with our characters, starting in 1880.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

The Trip to The River.

The Story About the Missions.

New Englander's Day.

Remembering About Old New England.

"Well, there is not much to tell, except that a man started a horse-back mail route to be run from Old Town to San Antonio, Texas. The mail was carried that way for several years. It was the first mail route of the West. The road passing here is the road over the mountains to the great desert of the salton sink, there is a sight. Millions of acres of level land, but no rainfall. Beyond is the Imperial Valley. There is also much timber and huge deposits of limestone and marble beyond Julian. A large river to the east of the Imperial Valley, the great Colorado, which some day may be diverted to irrigate the land. Then beyond are the great lands of Arizona, which someday will be irrigated. I have been told that the Arizona Indians were agriculturists, they grew beans, corn, pumpkins, melons, et cetera.

"These California Indians lived by hunting and fishing.

"We will now go down the river to the Old Mission. Soon we will come to the Old Mission Dam. It was built many years ago. A giant concrete dam on that spot would hold back untold millions of acre feet of water. All the water that flows here in this river, and in the wet season it is a real river. I have seen plenty of water flow to the Ocean past this spot. This river is the 'Father of Waters' of this County. Of course this was after rain storms, and really we do have rains here.

"We are at the ruins of the Old Dam, Martha. Would you like to tell about it?"

"Now, James, maybe you should tell about it. You have read my notes," said Martha.

"No, Martha, I think you should. I have been doing most of the talking so far," replied Twitcher.

"About Seventeen sixty-nine a group of settlers and a Catholic Priest, named Serra, traveled north two hundred miles from a Lower California Mission. There having been established several Missions at that time. These Missions gave supplies and sustenance to the group. He was sent here by Spain to subdue the natives and develop the country. He had the Cross and his Robes of Religion for protection. There were also soldiers who had the implements of war, which could be used if necessary.

"Water was needed for irrigation of the lands of the Mission, so the Padres had a dam built there. It was not very large, being about fifteen feet high. Really very small, as you can see, but it held back enough water, which was conveyed down the river in a cement conduit and open ditch. They made a cement for use in construction. Today that cement is hard as the stone itself. That dam has survived many floods of water. See over there is part of the conduit. It was several miles long. It was made in about Eighteen-ten. I will tell a brief story of the Mission when we arrive there."

"Thanks, Martha," said Twitcher, who then continued. "I have never seen a time but what there was always water flowing down there in the river gorge. See that? It is truly the Grand Canyon of this County. It is solid rock, bottom and sides."

As the party was looking down the canyon Bill asked. "You seem to know a lot about water and this river in particular."

"Yes," answered Twitcher. "Water is the life blood of this County, this great Southwest. He who can control the water can be a very benevolent King."

"Yes, there is something very enduring about that cement that the Padres made for that dam and conduit," continued Twitcher. "Some day a cement mill will locate here. A factory for the making of cement. There are about us here many hills of limestone, that is used to make cement, with clay. The two are burned in a pile, then the clinker is ground, then it is mixed with water and sand, that makes concrete. There are possibilities here, but strange as it seems, no one apparently cares much about them. Yet, there the little dam still stands as a living monument of the work of the good people who came before us. These good people who brought the white man's civilization to this grand State of California. Even the word 'California' has a certain charm.

"Sometimes I wonder if any of us will leave a monument, indicating the work we have done here. Will we be remembered, favorably after we are gone to that undiscovered country from where no one returns?" commented Twitcher. Along this part of the river there are three good dam sites. That is, solid rock on the bottom and sides."

Arriving at the crest of the Old Mission Gorge Road, the party surveyed the sight of grandeur below; a steep sided solid rock, river gorge. Always water flowed there in the bottom because at the crest was a natural underground rock barrier, which was a natural dam, holding back water, in the great sand filled pocket above, from which flows a stream of water continuously, a small stream during the dry season, and a torrent at times in the wet season.

The party started down stream, the road was suitably marked by a sign of skull and cross, bones, on a plain weather-beaten board. This was a true wet weather warning, at that time of the year, the road was seldom used. This road was to the south of the gorge, on top of and along side of a steep hillside. It was a narrow road with many turns and twists. It was a primeaval one-way road in most places, however, there were a few places where by-passes were made for passing vehicles. This land was the famous cracking blue adobe, of which there are thousands of acres in this County. When dry, the land cracks open, the cracks are from small ruptures to some two inches in width, and a foot or so apart, and usually extend downward several feet. A good deal of this soil formation is underlaid with carbonate of lime and sand, or white marl subsoil, in which case the adobe cracks to that depth.

In wet weather this adobe is like a cake of wet soap. It is very slippery and dangerous to travel on. During the wet period, the adobe swells, and cracks close. When it is not quite wet enough to be slippery, then it gathers in cakes on the vehicle wheels, one's shoes, etc., and it sticks like glue. Like a very good quality of glue. This day of travel, down the road it was not too dangerous for vehicles with good brakes, and horses not flighty. Always there was a breathing a relief, and of the passing of a hazardous trip when the bottom of the hill was reached. The party recuperated. Looking toward the Ocean was a long, level valley.

"We are almost at the Mission, Martha, would you now tell about the Missions?" asked Twitcher.

"Yes, James."

"The Missions System was a method used by the Government of Spain to settle this part of Mexico, known as Alta California, all of which at that time was a possession of Spain. In Seventeen hundred and sixty-nine a frail Franciscan padre, or priest, Father Junipero Serra, came here, also some soldiers under the command of Portola, who arrived by boat. They were to establish some Missions along the Pacific Coast. The soldiers were to be supported by the Missions.

This Mission located here was a huge colony. It was the first huge rancho, a super-rancho which supplied the cattle, horses and barley grains and other supplies for the development of the other Missions, of a like nature, to the North. Here was a founding of the great Alta California hide and tallow industry. These ranchos were really industries. This one was the first of a series of Missions, self-contained in all respects. They produced food, clothing, and shelter and provided these necessities of civilized life. These things were to be given to the Indians who adopted the ways of life of the white man.

"How well I remember in Longfellow's poem, 'Evangeline,' 'This is the Forest Primeaval.' Yes, here is the location of ground work by the primeaval white man on the California Coast. Here is where civilization began. This place should become an historical monument.

"Of the other Missions which followed this one in being established, there Churches still stand and services are held. The same locally made cement was used in the construction.

"The Missions were to be about one day ride, by horse back, apart. World news was told by the infrequent travelers, who got accommodations at the Missions, usually without cost. Eventually there were twenty-one Missions. They extended over an agricultural empire along the coast about seven hundred miles long, from here north. There was a general Indian uprising in Eighteen fifty-one. This Mission was burned and some attendants massacred. Father Serra was at Monterey at that time establishing another Mission. He returned here, had the Mission rebuilt. His friendly ways soon won the Indians back to the Mission. That kindly man lived fifteen years here. The Indians sometimes were subdued by the stomach method. No work, no food. Good food and clothes, which meant employment at gainful tasks. Before the time of the Missions, the Indians lived off the natural growth of the land and sea. There was a complete lack of farming. Hunting was very good. These Priests were bringing civilization to this part of the West. This particular place was the result of a re-location of the first San Diego Mission. These buildings were constructed with adobe mud brick, which were made here by the Indians under the direction of the Padres.

"It was a few years before the Indians, who were not always peaceful, were subdued and reconciled themselves to the peaceful pursuits of the Missions, and that self-sustaining economy. To this day the Indian folk lore remembers of the grand days of the Missions, and their work has perpetuated a religion among the Indians. The Mission Padres were highly respected by the Indians, even to this day. They cultivated the land, produced food, et cetera. Along the Coast are road signs which read 'El Camino Real,' made in the form of a bell. Translated means, 'The King's Highway.' These were placed just a few years ago.

"About eighty years passed and under the surveillance of the Padres, all the Missions, together there were tilled thousands of acres of land. Attending cattle on over a million acres of land. Each Mission was a complete operating unit. Gold was mined at Black Mountain, according to a legend. This Mission System had not been adopted by the Spanish authorities as permanent. It being a method civilizing the natives, preparing them for citizenship and final settlement on ranches of their own.

"After the Mexican Revolution of Independence, the new Mexican Government in Eighteen thirty-four started the secularization of the Mission properties. This Mission was reduced from fifty-five hundred acres to twenty-two acres. The Indians who worked so diligently for the Padres soon returned to the mountains, and their native habitat. Some wandered helplessly about; some returned to Santa Isabel, a mountain valley, where they erected a church for worship and meetings. There among the altar furnishings was a bell. It could not ring, being made of solid gold. It was living evidence of a passed industry, and teachings of the Missions.

"Great gardens returned to pasture, olive trees used for firewood, et cetera. These were the first centers of Christianity in California, with their cultural beauty, of comfort of spacious buildings and gardens. The industrious agriculture, and the well built chapels, all truly the marvel of California, were doomed to be ruined.

Without the system and order of the Padres, the Indians were lost. It is claimed fifteen thousand Indians were cared for, all helping in the work of the twenty-one Missions.

Many shiploads of commodities were sent to Spain. Large quantities of hides and tallow. Also quantities of these commodities were traded to New England Yankee traders. So you see today, this place will be rebuilt in remembrance of those who labored so hard to bring the first civilization to California. Truly, they worked for civilization, not for money or personal gain."

Martha had finished her story as the party arrived at the Mission for lunch. As all were now hungry for the first picnic of New Englanders' Day. Just then an old Indian couple came from the ruins of the Mission chapel. It was in ruins; really ruins, and the inside quietude was like a graveyard, because such it was—a graveyard for many who had passed on.

2nd ANNUAL PRESENTATION

SERAFINA

THE PLAY BY JEROME GERARD; MUSIC BY RENAN PREVOST

with additional numbers by
H. Adair Thomas

LOVE - INTRIGUE - COMEDY

A first rate tourist attraction must be original, entertaining, enjoyable and it must be seen only in one place. Tourists travel the world over to see unusual attractions. "Serafina" and "Stars in the West" can be annual attractions for San Diego. There has never been anything offered in San Diego, to compare with the possibilities of these Historical Operettas, excepting, the two great Expositions - 1915 and 1935, in our wonderful Balboa Park.

Why we offer these Operettas - The presentation of stage shows and etc., which have been produced for years, elsewhere, does not create prime tourist attractions of merit, for San Diego. Because as a rule tourists do not travel far to see stage shows, which can be seen at home or nearby.

Or to hear music which is regularly used on the radio or on records for home playing. All of which; although, said shows and music are acceptable for amusement; but, they are in reality "common stuff" and seldom attract the well informed and enlightened tourist, seeking the unusual.

A tourist attraction of supreme merit is the Historical Operetta. And produced annually in a Civic Theatre located amidst the fine buildings of Balboa Park, which is world famous and the center of culture of San Diego. We have the Russ Auditorium which will suffice until a Civic Theatre can be provided. We have the talent and the most enjoyable operetta - "SERAFINA"

These Operettas are new, with appeal unlike the over-played stage presentations of the past years.

So, We offer these original Operettas, they can be tourist attractions unsurpassed; because they have not been produced elsewhere, most of the music has not been published, or offered for public use. Here are two historical Operettas, in all that it implies, about our San Diego.

The historical facts presented in the Operettas are such as has never heretofore been presented. Participation is available for Patrons and Sponsors send communications to -

THE LONG LOOK

Palomar Observatory, one of the greatest scientific achievements in modern history, is located in San Diego's nearby back country. It is the home of the world's largest camera, which instrument will permit the moon to be photographed as if it were but 28 miles distant.

Ideal climatic conditions are essential to the successful operation of this observatory. After years of searching for a location offering clear atmospheric conditions throughout the year, officials selected Palomar Mountain.

On the site also will be found two other observatories, one is a reflecting telescope situated atop Palomar Mountain 68 miles northeast of San Diego via Escondido and U. S. Highway 395. Turning east at Escondido, the road signs are clearly marked.

NAVAL TRAINING CENTER

Training site for thousands of Navy recruits. Weekly reviews on Saturday mornings open to the public. Entrance on Rosecrans St.
